

New Publications

NOW READY—TENTH EDITION.

THE ILLUSTRATED

POETICAL GEOGRAPHY,

with the

RULES OF ARITHMETIC IN VERSE.

The Greatest Educational Work in the World.

EDUCATION SIMPLIFIED.

WHAT THE PRESS SAY:

The author has laboriously and ingeniously thrown the whole science of Geography into rhyme.

The interest now sympathy, and gives evidence of ease and skill in writing education, with great effect, in fastening the principles of Geography upon the memory as the common verse of "Thirty days hath September," &c., is in fixing the days of the month.—[New-York Evening Post.]

A BOOK THAT IS A BOOK."

The PRACTICAL GEOGRAPHY.—Too much cannot be said in favor of this interesting publication. It is certainly a patient literature—a composition that must have required a patient padding brain to have produced it. It forms a complete course of education, from the alphabet, cities, towns, islands, countries, &c., of the globe, up into smooth poetry, giving the location of places, and for what they are noted and distinguished. Aside from the music of its gorgeous rhymes,its leading quality appears to be its usefulness. Its content is so well organized, that it may be read by few words.

The object of the work is to aid the memory—the principle that nothing is more easy to learn and remember than poetry, while, on the other hand, new things are more difficult than hard names and locations.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]
